On the flip side, it's just as easy to find content that's explicit or graphic, especially for children.That's why Google's SafeSearch feature lets you filter out search results that you might not want yourself or your kids to see. Here's everything you need to know about Google's SafeSearch feature, including how to turn it on and off from any device. What is Google SafeSearch?Google SafeSearch is an automated filter used by parents, workplaces, and schools to block Google results from displaying harmful content, such as pornographic or violent images, videos, and websites. When enabled, both Google Search and Google Image Search will have the SafeSearch filter applied. The feature is automatically turned on for all accounts owned by a user 12 years old or younger. If you're a parent who uses Google's Family Link app, the feature can only be turned off by you, not your children. Administrators of a school or workplace network can keep Google SafeSearch permanently turned on by mapping domains to forcesafesearch.google.com, though Google recommends that a tech-savvy person handles this process.To learn more about locking SafeSearch on your devices, visit this Google Search Help page. How to turn on Google SafeSearchWhile your screen may differ slightly from the screenshots below, depending on what browser or device you're using, the steps should be similar. Just navigate to your settings.On desktop1. Log in to your Google Account and go to the Google homepage.2. In the bottom-right corner, click Settings, then Search settings. Make sure you're signed in to ensure changes are saved to your Google account across devices. Abigail Abesamis Demarest 3. Under SafeSearch filters, click the box next to Turn on SafeSearch. Make sure to scroll down and click save to apply changes. Abigail Abesamis Demarest 4. Click Save to confirm your changes. On mobile1. Open your mobile browser and go to SafeSearch settings.2. Turn on the Explicit results filter by clicking the toggle to the "on" position. You'll see a confirmation message at the bottom of the page. Abigail Abesamis Demarest 3. When you're finished, tap Back to go to the Google homepage. Troubleshooting SafeSearch issuesThere are a few common fixes to any Google SafeSearch difficulties: SafeSearch keeps turning onIf this happens, it may be because SafeSearch is set and locked by your account, your device, or even a network administrator. To check this, go to SafeSearch settings and see if there is a lock at the top-right with information about how SafeSearch is managed. If SafeSearch isn't locked, make sure you're signed into your Google account to ensure your saved SafeSearch settings are applied. SafeSearch is on, but explicit results still appearSafeSearch is designed to filter out explicit results, but no filter is 100% accurate. If explicit results still appear even if SafeSearch is on, report it to Google.SafeSearch keeps turning offAs long as you allow cookies (the internet kind, not chocolate chip), your saved SafeSearch settings should stay the same. Deleting your cookies or signing out of your Google account may reset your SafeSearch setting. Something went wrong. Wait a moment and try again. The SafeSearch feature on Google Search hides explicit results on the search feed. It will be turned on by default for children under 13 years old and turned off by default for everyone else. But in case you want to change the default settings for you or your family, you can easily do that on all the platforms from desktop to mobile. Here's how to turn on/off SafeSearch on Google Search on both your account and your kid's account. How to Turn On/Off SafeSearch on Google Search on Desktop On the desktop, SafeSearch can be toggled in two ways. One from Google Search settings and two from the Quick Settings option. Let's check out both. 1. First, open Google Search on your preferred desktop browser. 2. Now on the homepage of Google, click on the Settings option at the bottom right corner. 3. In the pop-up menu, select the Search Settings option. 4. Upon opening the Search Settings, you should see the SafeSearch Filters option at the top in the Search results category. 5. Enable/disable the checkbox beside the Turn on SafeSearch option in order to turn on or turn off SafeSearch respectfully. 6. Once done, scroll down and click on the Save button to save the setting. Alternatively, when you are on any search results page, you don't have to get back to the home screen and access the Search Settings. Click on the cog icon at the top right corner. Now you should find quick settings in a sidebar, just enable/disable the toggle beside the Explicit results filter to turn on or turn off SafeSearch quickly. How to Turn On/Off SafeSearch on Google Search on Mobile Browser The process of turning on or off SafeSearch is almost the same on the mobile browser, except for the name of the option. 1. Open Google Search on your preferred mobile browser. 2. Now scroll down to the bottom and tap on the Settings option in the footer of the website. 3. In the pop-up menu that opens, tap on the Search settings option. 4. Now scroll down and under the SafeSearch Filter section, you can select Show explicit results to turn off the SafeSearch or you can select Hide explicit results to turn on the SafeSearch. 5. Once done, scroll down and tap on the Save button at the bottom of the screen. How to Turn On/Off SafeSearch on Google App on Android and iOS If you prefer the Google app on the phone to quickly search the wild web, follow the steps below to enable or disable SafeSearch. 1. Open the Google App on Android or iOS. 2. Now tap on the profile icon at the top right corner. Then select the Settings option in the pop-up menu. 3. In the Settings page, select the Hide explicit results option. 4. On the next page, enable the toggle beside the Explicit results filter option to turn on SafeSearch and disable it to turn off the SafeSearch How to Turn On/Off SafeSearch on Your Child's Google Account You can create a Google account for your child with the help of the Family Link app. If you have created an account for your child, it will have SafeSearch enabled by default. Also, your child will not have the option to change the setting. So you don't have to worry about it, but in case you want to double-check, here's how to do it. 1. Open the Family Link app on your Android or iOS 2. Tap on the hamburger menu at the top left corner and then select your child's account from the sidebar. 3. Now scroll down and tap on the Manage Settings option. 4. On the next page, select the Google Search option and then make sure the toggle beside SafeSearch is turned on.0 For your child's account, you also have the option to block websites on Google Chrome. 1. Instead of Google Search, select the Google Chrome option. On the next page, select the option Try to block explicit sites. Google will automatically ban all explicit websites instead of just searches when enabled here. 2. You can tap on the Manage Sites option and blacklist more sites if required. You also have the option to approve blocked sites. 3. Alternatively, you can select the Only allow approved sites option. Now you can manually decide which sites to approve and which sites to block completely. Much Safer Google Search When enabled, Google hides search results that can have violence, sexual, hate, and other such content. Due to this very reason, you may not find accurate results if it has to show any such content. That being said, it is necessary for parents to block such results from popping up on their child's screen. Apart from search results, did you know you can also block websites completely with the help of Google Chrome browser?
