In the following pages you will find selected exercises for level B2 (advanced / intermediate 2). These exercises will help you better understand and deepen the advanced vocabulary and grammatic of this level. To train even more vocabulary, you should also read / listen to News or German Books. We hope you enjoy practicing and learning German! It is incredible to see what kind of heated debate can be shown a potential speed of learning. A couple of weeks ago, I was reading a publication in Reddit entitled: How much do you expect a student to learn and be able to speak a new language in a semester with classes once or twice a week? (September to November) Here are some of the answers. You need to talk to the native speakers. The only way to truly advance in a language is to talk to people. Taking classes can help you form a base, but move forward at a level of competition you need to study and practice all days in your own life. Most of the time, I feel that language classes are too slow. This discussion is nothing new. It appears from time to time on different websites and forums. Almost without exceptions, the answers tend to fall into one of the following categories. Learning myths Learn a language in 6 months, has to: 1) Live, breathe and smell a language around the clock. This advice is as great as it is not realistic unless you want to get a first class ticket to the city "Burnout" "Burnout" Intermediate Stations in "Start-boot Languages" and "No-i-Can" T-Agar-A-Beer-With-You-by-i-Hot-Learn ", of course 2) I know an experienced , it is impossible not to agree with this point. Language learning veterans certainly enjoy a rapid learning curve with each following language they learn. However, it would often be so, simply because they have been. Developed a language learning routine. 3) Renounce and cry deeply, but what about an average language learner? Is it impossible to learn a fast language? You need to give up the material world and live in a hut torn off in the Himalayas to get it out? If you would not know a thing or two things about fast learning, you would probably get this printer. I'm more than sure that the main reason why people do not learn rapidly it is that they do not know how to do it. And so, they do not realize what kind of hazaA ± AS are capable. What happens if I could show you the specific techniques you should use? What could you be able to learn a language then? Mateusz (or Mathew, if he prefers an Americanized version) is a Myo student and a rookie in the world of language learning that he learned from zero to B2 / C1 level in 5 months. To top it up, after five months, I had taken the Goethe-Zertifikat B2 exam and approved it, I will try to share our learning plan and what we did in so many details that I hope you will try to replicate these results. . Some antecedents and introduction initially, wanted to write this article in the form of an interview. However, he rapidly changed his opinion. He would leave dozens of more large and smaller questions without response. Not to mention: Most of the interviews are boring. So it is more of a hybrid. I think this format should allow you to get the highest value of it. Let's know a little about something about our of language 1) Take us first about you: I have 26 years and a doctor doctor (a close hematologist). 2) What was your Experience with languages before our mutual challenge: Learning English of the age of 12 years, private and regular school lessons. He definitely did not travel in operation. In fact, I considered myself delayed linguistically. Sometimes, even my native language (Polish) seems to be problematic. 3) How much time did you need to achieve a level of B2 in English? "More than 10 years. I think. As you can see, Mathew had no experience in languages, which is worse, it was considered bad to learn languages. What is it even worse, when I asked if yes I knew something about rapid learning strategies, he just answered, "Akind, but somehow I do not believe in these men?" It's not the fascinated beginning of our mission, a € How can you see, did you see all the reasons to fail, and yet, I had success. One of the main reasons why he was able to achieve it was that he was a great student. What makes a good student? I have taught many students throughout the years. Although most of them learn relatively fast and achieve level B1 / B2 in about 12 months, only some of them reach level B2 in 4 -8 months. Some character features make them unique. 1) Being motivated without it, most people send their hands and renounce the first contract Main weather. That's why you need it so much at the beginning. Mathew's motivation was apparent and specific. He wanted to learn German as soon as possible, "he had the opportunity to make my medical specialization in Switzerland." That allowed him to bounce off all the obstacles he found. Of course, he must bear in mind that the motivation by Sā alone is not enough. He must create habitats and build learning systems as fast as possible. Another trait that can help you with that is: 2) Be disciplined, it is the prerequisite for effective learning. I mean, what else are you going to follow in our plan? Fortunately stops You do not need to be disciplined by nature. You can awaken this feature when betting. (Read (read In this regard here). Mathew's workload was considerable. He knew that somewhat, he would say: "That's enough, I deserve a break, I mean, who would not, I assured that your motivation to continue maintaining your pace of learning was enough. How? We did bet betting. Do not do your daily tasks would cost you a lot. Understandably, he was able to resist temptation with the ass. The last feature of character that a good student must possess is: 3) Being a coachable. Why € It is so important? Due to its ego, some people can not take advice. It does not matter that explain step by step why, some strategy works and the other does not do it. After a short time, they backed up their ways evil Putting the German in the back burner. I knew something was out of this situation. "Why? Are you happy with your progress?" I asked. A € ā, -" I'm. I have never learned so rapidly in my life. "So, what's the problem?" "Honestly, honestly, I like my old men better." It is not that the methods of him were more easier or more pleasant, the mind. No. She just preferred to learn how she always did. She only shows that she can not change the approach of each person to learn. How much time was needed before moving to Mathew's total learning time, let's put things in perspective and answer the next question first. How much time do you need to learn German at a level B2? A rapid search segment from Google shows that the Institute of Outdoor Service (FSI) suggests that it needs approximately 750 hours to reach this level. An offer of many German language schools seems to confirm this number. Usually, you must spend around "700 hours in a course and then add about 100-200 hours to learn at home. It is worth remembering that these these It may vary depending on the mother tongue and knowledge of other languages. But as for our case, they certainly be solid. How many words do you need to learn German at a level B2? It is generally expected that people who take exams B2 know between 3 and 4.5 words. How much time did Mathew need to learn the German to B2? For five months, we met, on average, two hours per week. Yes, only two hours per week. Fun enough, which contrasts with raw with intensive courses in which he has to spend around 30 hours per week at his language school. Of course, he also learned at home. On average, he learned about 3 hours each day (including our meetings). The total time needed to reach the amounts of level B2 at 150 x 3 = 450 hours. For a rookie who knew only a foreign language before he decided to assume this challenge, it is undoubtedly impressive. But what is most impressive is the size of Mathew's vocabulary after five months. In total, he learned about 6700 words (Sā, we have). That means that the vocabulary-wise, exceeded most of the requirements for this level. However, the majority of the things he wanted, including the newspapers, and he could also talk about a variety of subjects. Although it was evident that the vocabulary of him was not fully consolidated at this point, since he had to fight for some words. Learn the German from scratch at a B2 level in 5 months. "The results of Mathew initially, our goal was to reach a B2 level in 6 months, so Mathew could take the Goethe B2 and ACE exam. A Interestingly, he managed to do it in 5 months! That is his pride and joy: the results are not bad, but I expected them to be much higher. Mathew had a firm understanding of the language. I guess in the end, the estrā © S reached him, since he did not have previous experience with such exams. Learn German Zero at a level of B2 in 5 months, a study plan, decided to break everything for you so you can, hopefully, follow this plan. Materials We only use four Anki things. Anki dictionary a grammar book a grammar tricks sheet That's it. There is power in simplicity. Learn German from scratch to a B2 level The first 2 weeks During the first four hours I taught Mathew Without listening or reading I think the things mentioned above are pretty clear. What might not be so obvious is why Mathew was forbidden to read and listen to anything for the first three months. "Why?! I can hear you scream! It doesn't make any sense! Or is it? If you know how to acquire vocabulary, you have no context to do so. You can learn the first 3-5 thousand words directly from the frequency lists. It saves you a lot of time just not being forced to go through all those bullshit textbook dialogs. What's more, most people assume that you need to start listening to your target language right away. Forgive me for being so brusque, you idiot.If you only know 200 or 600 words and almost no grammar, how much of the return rate does one hour of listening get? Of course, there's some value to it. You can get used to prosody and more, but generally, it's not worth it. There are no conversational partners Ok, that might be something else that might seem strange to you "Mathew didn't have any other conversational partners apart from me.It's not like he was banned or anything, his schedule was too hectic to find people who were willing to fulfill it. So yes, strange as it is, there is a good explanation for why it did not negatively influence Mathew's progress. What people don't understand is that conversations require two things from you: 1) Understanding If you listen a lot, even without any magic techniques, the day will come when you will be able to understand what is being said (assuming you practice your grammar and vocabulary). 2) Being able to express oneself This is usually the result of two things having a good mastery of grammar learning and activating words. That? Of course not! Learn German from scratch at a level of B2, weeks, 2-12, talking after the first two weeks, we demonstrate us. It was something new for him as he said: "Our conversations began after a few hours, and surprisingly, they were not trivial, but were turned around many issues. Usually, we started each lesson in the same way. First, I asked him to tell me what he did last week / weekend, so that he could activate past times. He also had to ask some questions using the grammatic constructions we had covered so far. Once. More, it may seem strange, but keep in mind that most of the time, students talk much more often than they ask questions. Thus, the imbalance occurs. In extreme cases, someone could be capable to talk with little fluently and still do not be able to ask a question without hesitation, this can paralyze almost any conversation. Teach Mathew how to activate his vocabulary, of course, if Mathew had the opportunity to talk to me, I would not come far. That's why he taught some other things to activate the vocabulary of him and practice his fluidity. Among others, he taught him how he could talk to himself at home (more about that ". The main focus: Acquisition of vocabulary The main focus during this period was learning as many words as possible. On average Mathew learned between 35-40 words every day. Learn German from scratch at a level B2 "weeks 12-16, listening and writing, was the time Mathew began to read a couple of articles per week, as well as hear News in a slow German for at least 30-40 minutes each day. As you probably remember, he did not hear anything or anyone else for me during the first months. Understood, his understanding, at first, was very low. I could get only 20-25% of what he heard during the Dus But what happened then blew the mind of her. The comprehension of it increased to approximately 80% in 2-3 weeks. After that, she changed to listen to the regular German. regular. Were your skills listening perfect when you took your exam? Of course, no. They are always one of the most challenging things to improve. But as you could see, they were good enough to spend a part listening from the test. Using active learning of passive learning is, without a doubt, the most powerful language learning tool that one could use. But it always works better when you combine it with passive learning. That is why I teach Mathew, how to surround me of a language to leave more of his studies. Learn German from scratch at a B2 level, weeks 16-20, was the most boring period of our preparation. In addition to making all the things mentioned above, I started teaching Mathew how to solve and approach all parts of the exam. It does not sound exciting, but it is a crucial element if you want to pass a certificate. You must create a habit of solving different exam parts in a particular way. It is worth mentioning that we use some basic mnemothelons to improve Mathew's presentation skills. Be able to rapidly memorize an asparo plan than you would like to say help to remove the advantage. How to learn German from scratch at a B2 level in 5 months: Summary as you can see, fast learning is, without a doubt, it is feasible even if you want to learn German from scratch at a B2 level in 5 months or rapidly. I have done it with dozens of students using the described strategy, and the results are always excellent. Of course, it could not be easy to start applying it to your learning from the beginning. After all, it requires a small approach different from learning languages than the one who is commonly accepted, but it works as a charm. If you ever replicate this strategy, please, send me a message and I know how to know how it was. Happy Scripts! Interested vocabulary laboratories ā €
